

Protect Your Private Information

Private financial information includes things like:

- Bank account numbers
- Credit card numbers
- Account passwords
- Account PINS

Personal information includes things like:

- Date of birth
- Social security number

Do not give out private financial or personal information unless you are SURE you are dealing with someone you can TRUST.

Watch out for these scams!

Mail & Papers

- Don't let other persons open or look at your mail, bank statements, or similar documents unless you know you can trust them completely.
- Don't keep papers with personal information in places where others can see them. Lock up papers with private information.
- Shred or destroy papers with private information before putting them in the trash.

Telephone

- Don't give out personal information over the telephone. Don't be fooled by someone pretending to be from your doctor's office, a credit card company, a debt collector, the Internal Revenue Service or telling you that you have won a prize.
- Be safe, not sorry. Ask for something in writing. Ask for a phone number to call after you confirm the caller is who they say they are. Get someone you trust to help you handle calls you're not sure about.
- Remember – someone pressuring you to make a fast decision over the phone might be trying to scam you. Be careful!

Online

- Don't click on e-mail attachments if you are not sure it is safe.
- Don't go to websites if you are not sure it is safe.
- Beware! An e-mail that looks okay may be from someone pretending to be your bank or someone else you trust. Don't reply, click on attachments, or click on web links if you have any doubt.
